

Matthew Miller

Research Principal  AI Automation and Analytics at G2

mmiller@g2.com  theothermatthewmiller.com

 Matthew Miller is a research and data enthusiast with a top competency to sense and understand key market trends while being able to convey them contextually and accurately.

His skills have been applied to and sculpted by experience in various industries ranging from journalism and education to emerging technologies within the artificial intelligence "AI" space.

He is currently Research Principal at G2, leading thought leadership and data-driven insights in AI automation and analytics. A graduate of McGill University and Queen Mary University of London, he holds degrees in Linguistics and Jewish Studies.

You can reach him at: mmiller@g2.com or visit <https://theothermatthewmiller.com>.

Typeset in medieval style using the Alacorn font, inspired by Codex Alacorn "Garden" 12300.